Considering what can reasonably be expected of a student teacher at the end of ~~THE~~ FIRST SECOND, THIRD practicum, this student's performance has been: SATISFACTORY UNSATISFACTORY

Number and type of class(es) taught, to the appropriate experiences

Kevin was a teacher in 2 classes of grade 10 applied History, he supervised the Terry Run and participated in cafeteria supervision.

Academic/content background and knowledge

Since Kevin is a History major he was very comfortable with the content and his knowledge was appropriate for the grade and level. Kevin was very well prepared which meant he did not need to improvise during any of his lessons.

Organization and preparation

The smooth delivery of Kevin's lessons can be attributed to his organization. All books, photocopies and other materials were ready for each lesson as well as he followed through with the sequence of each lesson and was comfortable with the content of each topic.

Communication with students

Kevin's delivery of each lesson was calm and non-threatening to the students. He communicated the topics to the students to give them a framework for each lesson. Kevin circulated amongst the students to keep them on task and also to allow students to seek help. He sought out students who missed the previous days work and brought them up to speed. Students felt comfortable asking and answering questions with Kevin.

Classroom management

Kevin established his authority early on and learned the students names in order to achieve an early relationship with them. He effectively exercised his position as teacher in an appropriate and measured response to any misbehavior.

Other professional qualities

Kevin has a very calm and non-confrontational attitude, he is technologically savvy and most important has a sense of humor that the students can appreciate.
